

Webinar Title: Career Transition: The Sports Athlete Model

Presented by: Jennifer Thibeaux, Ph.D. \(abd\), SPHR

Description: Corporations are faced with hiring people that are these days heavily in career transition. Most people attempt to transition by themselves and corporations are reporting that the quality of the candidate interview has shifted from confident talent to needy job applicant. In this session Jennifer Thibeaux describes how she coaches the career transition of some of the public's most revered sports players into their next career. This session was developed to reveal a new talent entering the workforce and make inroads in bridging the gap between typical corporate hires and professional athletes who are eager, uniquely talented in emotional intelligence factors, and can be great contributions to a growing culturally diverse corporate setting. Jennifer Thibeaux has worked directly with the NFL for internship programs as well as with professional athletes (active and retired) from the NBA, NFL, CFL, Track & Field, and SnowBoarding Sports. This is a high-energy webinar that is a glimpse into where and how you recruit and retain a unique segment of talent in your workforce.

Date: July 13, 2010